NuCamp Portfolio Project

Education & Literacy Nonprofit

INTRODUCTION

I am building a website for OneWord. I have taken inspiration from sites for other nonprofits, though I do want this website to be a resource and a connecting point. This will mean creating a blog space for discussion within, as well as a calendar of events and a the ability to accept donations.

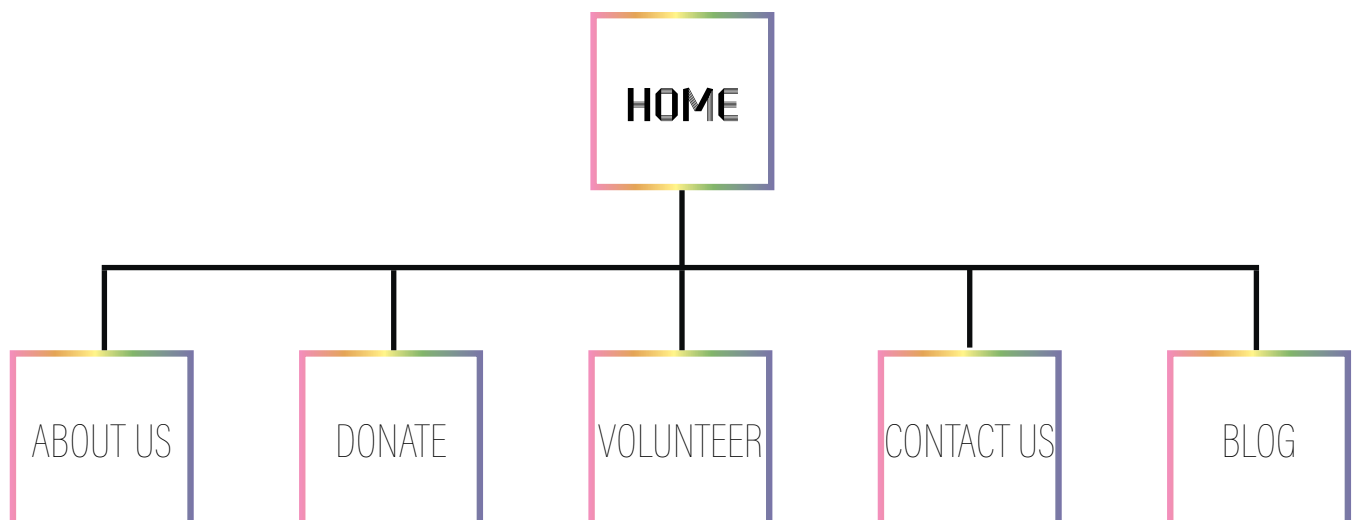

INTERFACE & DESIGN

Design is laid out on the following pages

NAVIGATION STRUCTURE

I would like this site to be extremely simple to navigate. When the site opens I would like to create a modal to select a language and I would like to create the option to have the information read aloud. This will be slightly different from a screen reader in that this option will be for those individuals who are unable to read not necessarily for those who can not see the screen.

The navbar will be constant, and users should be able to access any page from any other at any given time.

Blog blog blog words in the blog. These are the words in the blog that is right here and this is what it could look like. Blah blah. Hopefully there's too much and this needs to link out when clicked ...

WORD OF THE DAY:

This is the definition of the word of the day. Maybe we'll even put a little speaker icon or something by it so when someone clicks it they can listen to the word of the day and the definition.

- dictionary.com (maybe?)

Blah blah talking about the blog and this is what i think about it and you should too or not depending on the person with the opinion. Sometimes people want to change your mind, other times they just want a good debate.
